

Why learn to do it?

- Well, you learn to do it for books, and you spend far less time reading than watching TV and films
- People who make films and TV programmes are trying to manipulate you in a bad way far more than authors, who are usually nice people
- They are usually trying to make you believe the following for example:
 - The American Way is the best way
 - Spending all your money on useless sh*t you don't need is a good thing
 - It's natural for men to be in control, and women's job is to look good and serve men
- Ultimately, the white men who run the media try to make sure they keep all the power and get all your money
